Hello and happy Fall! Our first grade has worked hard and learned lots this last month. In math we have been working to find the sum in addition sentences and story problems. During our reading time we have read and discussed animals both tame and wild; all while learning and identifying all of the short vowel sounds. During our writing workshop we have begun to learn about the writing process and are using it to begin personal narratives. Each student will publish their narrative for the Winter Show of Work. The Show of Work is scheduled for December 17th. Mark your calendars!

These are pictures from a Social Studies project on Building Community. Students made buildings and wrote about them.
